What's That About?

Readers write or email
"What's That About?"
editor Liz Bradbury with questions about GLBT issues.

This letter came to VGP via email from a PDN and Photo Project member. It has been edited for length, but it can be read in its entirety at the PDN web site in the letters section.

(Dear WTA,) ...I used to think that fighting for gay rights was a hopeless cause. I sat idly by and took little interest in politics and just waited to see if one day "the Pioneers" would make it "safe" for the rest of us.

Maybe it's because I finally met a woman that I truly want to spend the rest of my life with. Maybe it's because I'm finally growing a backbone. Maybe it's because I'm finally taking my life seriously. Maybe because I'm ashamed about "talking the talk but not walking the walk." Whatever the reason, I've decided to make my own stand. When I saw the advertisement for the "100 Same-sex Couples" photo project, I thought we should get involved in it. I was afraid of the backlash but I figured if Lillian had the guts to do it, I should too.

I still fear it but life marches on. I can no longer allow fear to dictate how I live my life. I joined in a Civil Union with the woman I love and (now) I want more.

I want the world to recognize that we love each other, we're committed to each other, and we're no different than anybody else. I want marriage. I want the same rights as everyone else in this country. I want to be able to hold my wife's hand in public without people staring, whispering, or being asked to leave. I want people to realize that I'm just as valuable a citizen as the people next door. I want to fight. I want to do more than "my part."

I want to help someone else, maybe someone who was just like me, someone who may be too afraid to stick their neck out. I know that fear, I've lived it every day of my life for 22 years. Someone fought FOR me, now it's my turn to "take up the torch" and continue the fight started by those much braver than me.

I used to think the chants "We're here, we're queer, get used to it!" were demeaning and useless. Now I know why so many took up the chant. I am what I am. I am happy that I am what I am and I am finally PROUD to be a lesbian after all these years. Sincerely, Melissa Emes

AM HASKALAH'S RELIGIOUS SCHOOL FOR CHILDREN

Looking for a Jewish religious school for your child? Am Haskalah, the Lehigh Valley's Reconstructionist congregation, is a warm, progressive and pluralistic congregation, that offers small classes (fewer than 10 children), and a curriculum that emphasizes the joys and richness of Jewish traditions, and the importance of social activism/tikkun olam. Am Haskalah is committed to serving the GLBT community. Information: religious school director Joysa Winter: 267-902-7752 or joysa@aol.com.

Dubonim, a monthly program for Jewish kids ages 2-5 and their parents, is accepting registrations. Held on the first Sunday of the month at the Jewish Community Center in Allentown, from 4-5 pm, the program includes Jewish songs, crafts and celebration. Dubonim is sponsored by Am Haskalah. $36 for the year.

PEPE'S STORY

SCOTTY IN THE CITY

By Scott Laubner

To folks who have been following my New York story, I've moved. I am living in a beautiful building. The Indiana limestone exterior is embedded with fossils for the observant eye, has a canopy that goes out to the curb, and a doorman. I live up on the ninth floor in a three bedroom apartment with Mark, Pepe and two dogs, Sammy and Shakira. Pepe is a Cuban expatriate and from the beginning I had a feeling he had some good stories to tell. So one afternoon Pepe, the dogs and I sat down and Pepe told me his story.

I wanted to know what was pre-Revolutionary Cuba like for the GLBT community compared to life in Revolutionary Cuba. Gay life in Batista's Cuba was tolerable. As long as the gay bars paid off the army or the police, they would look the other way. There were at least fifteen gay bars in Havana with names like Intermezzo, El Lucero, Barrilito, El Gato Tuerto, Los Troncos, El Turis, Cheresada, and Dirty Dick's.

In July 1957 Castro attacked an army base and the Revolution was on. The army gave all its attention to the rebels and gay Cubans took full advantage of this.

In 1959 Castro took over and Batista fled to Santo Domingo. The Revolution brought some immediate changes. Pepe remembers one drastic change; all the automobiles were taken away from the rich and given to their maids. The maids were supposed to become cab drivers and earn their living that way. ("The maids crashed up so many cars. What a fiasco that was!" says Pepe.)

Gay men were supposed to become "real men." They were sent to the country for manual labor. Pepe knew guys who were forced to go to the sugar cane fields.

Pepe's birthday party in 1960 was busted by the police. To be anonymous Pepe and his friends chose a little town outside of Cienfuegos on the southern coast of Cuba. During the course of the evening more and more gay men showed up at the little restaurant for the party. Then three police cars pulled up and they told everybody in the group to step outside. As sometimes happens, the neatest member of the group made himself the spokesman for the group. "I can explain everything," he said. "This is a birthday party. I can prove it. There is a cake in the trunk of my car."

The police man opened the trunk and found the birthday cake, but also found a wig and a head scarf. "How do you explain these?" said the cop.

"Oh, well there is a carnival the next town over and we are on our way there," said the spokesman. Everybody was taken down to the police station. Usually gay men were made to clean the jail and then have their heads shaved so everybody in town would know their secret and Pepe and his friends were afraid this would happen to them. The police chief showed up. He had been having an affair with the spokesman.

The police chief said "Everybody get out and go home."

Between 1959 and 1960 Pepe made three trips to Miami and that was enough to arouse suspicion among the Cuban authorities. He was put in jail because they suspected he was working for the CIA. He finally got out of jail and in 1962 he left Cuba for good.

Pancho, Pepe's gay cousin, still lives in Havana. Pancho says there are signs that life for gays and lesbians is slowly improving in Havana. A Cuban slang term for "gay man" is pajaro, which means "bird." There is a scenic bridge in a Havana park where the gay men cruise, that everybody refers to as La Percha. It means, "the perch."

After leaving Cuba Pepe wound his way to New York City. He has been living in the same apartment for some forty-odd years. He is well liked by the other tenants and knows the history of our building and our neighborhood. When asked if he ever would like to return to Cuba, he says, "Not really; it's changed and I don't like Castro."

"But Castro is old," I say.

He sits on the couch with the dogs next to him and thinks about it for a while. On the street below a passing dog barks. We are on the ninth floor, too high up to bother with a responding woof.

SOOZ VIEWS

By Sue Sneeringer

SMALL SCREEN

Recently, my friend Faye and I sat down for dinner, chitchat and a return to season one of "CAGNEY & LACEY", finally out on DVD. The show is a little dated around the edges but not much. For your basic run of the mill cop show, C & L holds up really well. The writing was always solid, as were all the other elements of the show that made it compelling to watch, not the least of which was its leads. It was fun to get back into the world of Mary Beth and Christine. Of Tyne and Sharon.

We first watched Mary Beth's nervous breakdown episode. She's about to snap and everyone around her is oblivious, including Harvey and Chris. When a priority assignment threatens her much-needed vacation, that's exactly what MB does. She quietly escapes the squad room and disappears. From her job, from her husband and sons, from her life. How she perseveres (and how Tyne plays it all) is, of course, worth watching again but the stunning truth of the episode is the way it acknowledges the stress we all face when juggling family and career, of how life just catches up with us sometimes and how that plays out for women, in particular. So, while C & L was and remains a really good cop show, it's important to remember its trailblazing role in illuminating women's lives in a way no show had bothered to before. It's no small feat that Tyne or Sharon won the Best Actress Emmy all six years of the show's run. And, to me, no surprise.

Kudos this Emmy season to the academy for giving "THE SOPRANOS" the Best Drama prize. It was a trailblazer, too, and not because it was about gangsters, explicit and violent and unbelievably dangerous in our 'what can I get away with' culture but because it remains the most ambitious and most fully realized drama of its time. Hooray for Sally Field, too. Being censored these days is a badge of honor and her anti-war acceptance speech was one of the evening's few highlights (hello, Ryan Seacrest hosting in lieu of Ellen D?). The evening's most glaring omission, in my opinion? Showtime's "DEXTER." At least Helen Mirren's "PRIME SUSPECT" swan song was rewarded. PS was, after all, another really good cop show with a wonderfully complicated female detective. Once again TV trumps films in that category. One can only hope that "THE CLOSER" and "SAVING GRACE" are just a few of the shows to come along the trail their amazing predecessors blazed!

HIP HOP: BEYOND BEATS AND RHYMES

A documentary by Byron Hurt with a Panel discussion to follow. Oct. 9 - 6:15pm - Muhlenberg Recital Hall. Cosponsored by: Muhlenberg GSA, Black Students Association, and the Office of Multicultural Life. Open to the public: Contact: Adrian Shanker - As233422@muhlenberg.edu for more information.

Filmmaker Byron Hurt, a life-long hip-hop fan, was watching rap music videos on BET when he realized that each video was nearly identical. Guys in fancy cars threw money at the camera while scantily clad women danced in the background. As he discovered how stereotypical rap videos had become, Hurt, a former college quarterback turned activist, decided to make a film about the gender politics of hip-hop, the music and the culture he grew up with. "The more I grew and the more I learned about sexism and violence and homophobia, the more those lyrics became unacceptable to me," he says. "And I began to become more conflicted about the music that I loved." The result is HIP-HOP: Beyond Beats and Rhymes, a riveting documentary that tackles issues of masculinity, sexism, violence and homophobia in today's hip-hop culture.

MCC NEWS & EVENTS

MCC's Move: It's official, Metropolitan Community Church of the Lehigh Valley has signed a 5-year lease for new rental space at the SilkWerks building in Allentown. Occupancy will commence November 1, 2007. The SilkWerks building is located at 930 North 4th Street, at the corner of 4th and Whitehall Streets. The entire Lehigh Valley community is invited to celebrate MCCLV's move to new space on Sunday, November 18. There will be a Building Dedication Worship Service at 10:30 a.m., followed by a "Harvest Feast." Bring a dish to share and tour MCCLV's new surroundings. All are welcome.

Can you help MCCLV with the transition process? There will be Work Days in October and moving days at the end of October. Please contact MCCLV at 610-709-8800 or info@mcclv.org if you can assist.

Adult Bible Study - Starting the first Sunday of January Metropolitan Community Church of the Lehigh Valley will host an Adult Bible Study every Sunday from 9 a.m. - 10 a.m. For 2008 and 2009, the Bible Study will be a biographical study of the Bible, led by MCCLV Pastor Beth Goudy. For more information, contact Rev. Goudy at 610-709-8800 or rev.goudy@mcclv.org. welcome.

Anniversary Sunday -- October 7 is MCCLV's annual Anniversary Sunday, marking its 23rd year of ministry in the Lehigh Valley. MCCLV Pastor Beth Goudy will preach at the 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. services, with a sermon titled, "So Great a Cloud of Witnesses."

Ministry Sunday -- Sunday, October 14, MCCLV will be hosting a "Ministry Sunday." The church's ministry leaders will be on hand to share about the many ministry opportunities at MCCLV.

Freedom to Marry Day -- MCCLV will observe National Freedom to Marry Day in February, 2008. On Friday, February 8 MCCLV will lead a Courthouse Action and on Saturday, February 9 MCCLV will lead a worship service celebrating same-sex couples. For more information and to help with planning, phone MCCLV at 610-709-8800 or e-mail info@mcclv.org

MCCLV's Tricky Tray Fundraiser, October 27 at the SeWyCo Fire Hall on Route 378. Doors open at 9am with multi-item brunch starting at 10:30am. Tickets are $20 per person and come with a starter packet of 15 tickets for baskets valued at $25 to $50 and include the cost of brunch. There will be at least 100 baskets ranging in value from $25 to over $400; with special items valued at over $450 and a 50/50.

RANTS & RAVES BY STEPHEN T. LIBBY

Randomness is Fun-damental to This Column

*Check out the Advocate's list of 40 Heroes. The list includes the usual suspects as well as some names that may not sound familiar. If so, Google them and find out why the publication chose Harry Hay, Barbara Gittings and Margarethe Cammermeyer. Not sure I agree with the selection of the person at number 1. Lists are designed to generate discussion. Email me and let me know who your top three are and I'll tally and print them in a future column.

*It was a decent summer at the movies. If you missed them on the big screen, catch these titles on their DVD release: Spiderman 3, Knocked Up, Hairspray, Harry Potter 5, Bourne Ultimatum, Superbad, Transformers, Away From Her, Once, and Waitress.

*I'm not going to write anything bad about Britney... except this: What the F?! I've never been a fan. In my opinion her only good song is Toxic and I'm convinced now more than ever that it must have been a fluke. She needs to disappear for a while. If only to save more trees from being felled to report her every twitch, whim and undergarmentless region. Oh yeah, and take La Lohan with you.

*Unfortunately, Andy Warhol was right. Everyone is getting their 15 minutes and the rest of us must witness it. Perez Hilton? He's at the Top of my 40 Anti-Heroes or Gay Villians Lists. If you have millions of people reading your blog, have something to say besides calling celebs names like Jake GyllenHO and Mischa Farton. My 12 year old niece could have done better than that. Which got me thinking. Why do so many adult gay men act like 12 year old girls? Again, email me your thoughts.

*Great season for music. While I still have a Rolling Stones disc within reach at all times, there have been some exciting discs released so far this year. New releases by Amy Winehouse, Riley Kiley, 1990's, Tegan & Sara, Daughtry, Annie Lennox, Plain White T's, Rhianna, Michael Buble, Brad Paisley, Against Me!, White Stripes, are all worth your hard-earned dollars. Send your comments to: st327@hotmail.com.

*Hey, while I'm here promoting the Advocate, I'm going to give a shout out to the new issue of Gaydar Magazine. The Lehigh Valley based quarterly that has just been picked up by Borders for a wider, tri-state distribution. The Fall 07 issue features exclusive interviews with authors Armistead Maupin, Edmund White, screen legend Farley Granger, Logo's Jesse Archer, Dante's Cove's Charlie David, always hysterical Margaret Cho, reality show hunks Aaron Savvy & JP Calderon and 80's Mall Queen Tiffany as well as reviews of Vienna, the new Jeep, Autumn Ales, the Harry Potter series, new DVDs & CDs and articles on "Lunchtime" Cosmetics, Gay History, Gay News in Quotes and much more. We've added pages and advertisers to the heavy-weightmate finish. To order your copy, a subscription, back issues or to advertise your business, email me at: gaydarmagazine@hotmail.com. See ya next month! Steve

THE EDUCATION ADVENTURE BEGINS

For months Lucas was telling everyone he would be going to school in September. That day finally came. He now attends preschool on Tuesdays and Thursdays for a quick two and a half hours each day. Too quick.

Ironically, other parents have told us that this is a sad time because it means their children are growing, and they will be spending some time apart from them. We sympathized with them, momentarily, and then rejoiced in private.

Coincidentally, Lucas also was extremely excited for his first day of preschool. He was the first one up that morning. When we arrived at the preschool, Lucas was happy to be there. He wasn't shy at all even though he normally tends to be reserved with new people and new situations, but never scared. We weren't worried at all.

Some of the children were crying as their parents dropped them off. Lucas was very calm and just asked where Daddy was going. After explaining that school was for him and Daddy would be back in a few hours, he was content. While Lucas was having fun at school, the pit in my stomach was not of sadness, but of happiness.

Lucas has started his educational journey, and now has some socialization time with other children. Lucas fortunately lives in a good neighborhood, but unfortunately there are not many children for him to play with, at least not until the developers begin building new houses on the farmland around our home. Being able to see other kids is another reason Lucas looks forward to school. Ever since his first day, he often pops out of bed to say, "I go to school." From the livingroom window he watches Dad leave for work then wakes up Daddy to get him ready for school.

It has become obvious why Lucas is so happy to go to this preschool. He gets to be with other children, all of whose parents are gay too. Okay, none of them appear to be gay except the one mother that drove up in a pick up truck with power tools in the back. But the other parents do seem friendly and the teachers welcoming when they learn that Lucas has two dads.

TAKE THE FIRST STEP
by Denise McKelvey

HEALTH INSURANCE CRISIS

Across the nation, individuals and families who do not have health care coverage get sick more often, earn less and die earlier than those with insurance. Individuals who loose their coverage or never had coverage are a growing national trend.

The ranks of the uninsured have grown by nearly 18% since the year 2000, according to a study updated in 2006 by the Kaiser Commission on Medicaid and the Uninsured. More than 40 million people under 65 lack insurance and millions more are considered under insured, with gaps in their coverages that leave them exposed to catastrophic medical bills. In fact, medical bills are a factor in about half of all consumer bankruptcies filed, according to a Harvard University study.

People without health insurance receive less preventive care and are less likely to have major diseases detected early. The poorer health associated with being uninsured depresses worker's average lifetime earnings significantly. The commission estimated that better health would boost earnings by 10% to 30%. Let's look at some options.

-COBRA: After leaving a job, maintain your existing benefits for up to 18 months. Coverage for a family of three can easily cost $500 to $1,000 per month.

-HIGH DEDUCTIBLE POLICIES: You may pay more of your routine medical costs out of pocket, but these policies protect you against catastrophic medical bills. Having the coverage also entitles you to insurer-negotiated discounts with doctors and hospitals. (It is shocking, but many medical providers charge the uninsured higher rates and fees because they aren't covered by such discounts.)

An individual HMO policy from Blue Cross with no deductible might cost a single 24 year old female $265 a month. Choose a plan with 20% co-pays and a $1,000 deductible, however, and the cost drops to $62 a month.

-SHORT TERM COVERAGE: Blue Cross provides individual policies that bridge your coverage until you get your next job. States sponsor low-cost or free health insurance for children.

-ROUTINE AND DIAGNOSTIC CARE: Community health centers offer free or low-cost care. Visit the Bureau of Primary Health Care or Centers for Disease Control and Prevention can direct you to clinics and resources for the uninsured. Low cost mammograms and Pap smears are available. The American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345 can direct you to services that provide free or cheap screening for various types of cancer. Keep an eye out for local employers who sponsor health fairs. Free and low-cost screenings for common ailments, from depression to high cholesterol, are

ADRIAN SHANKER: QUEER RELIGION ISSUES

Local VGP Columnist Adrian Shanker begins his new monthly column on queer religion issues with this exclusive interview with Rabbi Richard Address, who recently edited the expanded and updated version of Kulanu, a 500 page manual on GLBT inclusion in Reform Judaism. This new expansion, for the first time, includes resources for the trans community - including a blessing for a gender reassignment surgery and coming out blessings for the trans community. This is the first interview in any publication Rabbi Address has given on this historic expansion.

Here are two of the questions Adrian asked Rabbi Address. Read the entire interview at the PDN web site (www.padiversity.org) in the VGP section -- see GLBT Faith Pages.

Rabbi Richard F. Address serves as the director of the Union for Reform Judaism's (URJ) Department of Jewish Family Concerns. Rabbi Address joined the URJ staff in 1978 after pulpit work in California. The URJ is the first denomination to publish transgender specific resources for inclusion in congregations. For more info on Kulanu, or to purchase a copy, please visit: http://urj.org/pr/2007/kulanu\_revised/index.cfm

Question #3. Adrian Shanker: Kulanu, the URJ manual on GLBT inclusion, now includes resources for the trans community, including a blessing for gender reassignment surgeries -- how did the URJ come to decide to expand Kulanu?

Rabbi Richard Address: We decided to include the transgendered material because this issue is alive. We knew that the world had changed since the first edition (10+ years ago--before the department was created) and we knew that to be honest, we had to reflect the changes in the last decade. Thus, it was kind of natural to include this material.

Question #6. Adrian Shanker: This past year the Conservative Jewish movement voted to support marriage equality -- making 3 of the 4 largest Jewish movement's advocates of marriage equality. In the past, many GLBT Jews have become unaffiliated or they joined GLBT specific congregations -- how can clergy in the URJ and elsewhere make their congregations queer - inclusive -- and is there still a need for GLBT congregations?

Rabbi Richard Address: I remember that when we worked with Beth Ahavah in Philadelphia, there was a perception that there was a need for GLBT specific shuls. I honestly think that, in many parts of the country - that is changing. More of our congregations are inclusive. There is room for all kinds of synagogues and I am a believer in spreading the word of Reform and having as many choices as possible. As for clergy and inclusiveness.....well...in every congregation it all comes down to the rabbi. Certainly at HUC this is not an issue, and that sense of openness carries out after Ordination and is helping to change the field. It all comes down again to relationships and seeing people as people. There is still not this total openness on all parts of lay people in all parts of the country. But, you can make that statement about a lot of things, as I am learning.

Read the rest of this interview at www.padiversity.org.

TRISH'S COLUMN ©

By Patricia Sullivan
VAL AND THE LIBRARIES

My article about Berks County Libraries brought some interesting responses from Berks readers. One of the most poignant is this letter below. This personal story speaks to the importance of having the history and literature of GLBT people in public libraries. Since writing this letter, Val volunteered to help PDN place a collection of GLBT books donated by Hillary Sailor of Fountainhead Books in Berks County Libraries. If you want to help Val get some of these books into your Berks County Public Library, contact PDN. (This letter was edited for length, but it can be read in its entirety at the PDN web site in the Letters section.)

Dear Patricia,

I read with interest your column in the latest issue of the Valley Gay Press regarding the distribution of VGP in public libraries. I had asked Bernville Library twice why they did not display it.

I have worked in various libraries in Berks County (I still do), so I knew all the libraries were receiving it. The first time I asked the Bernville Library, I didn't get a response. The second time, I received an email from the director. She said the Board decided not to display it. That was the only explanation.

The ironic thing is...I worked at Bernville Library for about 3 years during my undergraduate work. I've had many people come up to me when I was an assistant asking for GLBT-related materials. They usually whispered. I donated the only three GLBT books in Bernville's collection. I go in periodically to make sure the books are still there. They are.

I am familiar with many of the public libraries. (I was the person who asked about it at Hamburg.) When I received the second email from Bernville, I was energized. I decided to put my Professional Writing degree to good use, and write a letter. I wanted them to know about my experience as a library assistant and all the requests I had regarding GLBT material.

I also wanted to write how the public libraries helped me as a trans/lesbian growing up in this rural area. There was a time when I couldn't even walk down the "gay" aisle in a bookstore or library. But the more books I saw, the more confidence I gained. I can now go into any Borders/Barnes and Noble, sit a stool in front of the gay section, and just read.

There was one library in particular that really has helped me. The Yocom Library at Reading Area Community College has a nice collection of GLBT-related materials. I donated a few, others have donated some, and the rest are purchased. (The Yocom Library at RACC is not a public library, but it is open to the public.) There are many (GLBT) books at Yocom. The library subscribes to the Advocate, and it has a small, but growing GLBT film section. (I am not totally unbiased. I am a graduate of RACC and I do work at Yocom as a part time assistant!)

I never wrote that letter to Bernville. I succumbed to fear. And the ironic thing is that I am pursuing my Master's degree in Student Affairs in Higher Education at Kutztown University. I want to specialize in transgender issues in Higher Education. I always thought I'd be an advocate for those who were silenced. Yet I was silenced myself. And the thing is, I did it to myself. I feel ashamed that I didn't write that letter. I was a coward. I guess I still am.

But by writing this letter to you, I feel like I can overcome that cowardice and write that letter to Bernville. Hopefully, I can be that one person to make a difference. It worked at Hamburg.

Sincerely, Valerie Schaeffer

**(2005) Spokane Mayor James West -- Voted against laws protecting GLBT people in his city. -- Then admitted to relationships with men, and that he posted personal ads on gay.com. West has been accused of using his office to develop relationships with young men in exchange for "favors." **(2006) Ultra Far Right Minister Ted Haggard -- Used his position to vilify the GLBT community and advocate against GLBT equality -- Haggard was removed from all of his leadership positions after allegations of homosexual sex with a prostitute. Haggard denied the claims until hard evidence proved the allegations.

**(2006) Congressman Mark Foley (R-Florida) resigned from Congress after allegations surfaced that he had sent suggestive emails and sexually explicit instant messages to teenaged boys who had formerly served and were at that time serving as Congressional pages.

**(2007) Florida Republican State Representative Bob Allen -- Co-sponsored an unsuccessful bill that would have made public solicitation for gay sex a felony rather than a misdemeanor. -- Then was arrested in his home district for soliciting an undercover male cop in a rest room. Allen offered to perform fellatio on the officer for $20. Later Allen made a racist statement in an effort to excuse his actions.

**(2007) U.S. Sen. Larry Craig (R-Idaho) -- Had a history of anti-gay rights votes. -- Was arrested in June at a Minnesota airport by a plainclothes police officer investigating lewd conduct complaints in a men's public restroom. Craig plead guilty to the charges.

** Any law enforcement agency that insists men's restroom sex sting operations are anything other than discrimination aimed directly at the gay community.

While I gain a certain level of glee at the demise of the above anti-gay figures, it comes from the fact that their hypocrisy was exposed, not that they outed themselves.

While we all shake our heads at holier-than-thou Larry Craig types, we also have to look at the other issue. These restroom stings are nothing more than homophobes disguised as moral vigilance. Other than the crime of hypocrisy, what did Craig really do to harm humanity? (Allegedly) tap a guy's foot in an effort to stir up anonymous romance. If the man didn't want to engage, all he had to do was ignore the tap. Do these victimless crimes warrant a special police undercover operation? The worst that could happen is someone walking in on the um...date. Public indecency is a crime, but all the airport police have to do to stop it is send in a uniform cop, or set up obvious surveillance cameras.

Still think these stings aren't specifically anti-gay? Then consider this: How many women have to endure propositions in airport bars? Those advances are much more blatant and more unpleasant than a toe tap. Just ignoring the tap doesn't make a sloppy drunk on a travel junket leave a woman alone. So, why no undercover women police in airport bars arresting guys making unwanted passes? How is it different, other than being hetero? That's the issue.

VALLEY GAY PRESS BOOK REVIEW

The Tiger in the Attic: Memories of the Kindertransport and Growing Up English
 by Edith Milton

The Kindertransport allowed 10,000 Jewish children to escape the holocaust by leaving Germany for England at the dawn of WW2. These children were uprooted from a country where life had already been frighteningly altered, to be transported to a foreign land on the brink of war. Yet Edith Milton's well written, engaging and often humorous memoir illuminates the surprising generosity and love she and her sister encountered in her new English home with "Uncle Bourke" and "Aunt Helen" and their family.

Readers are struck by the sometimes desperate need of the pre-adolescent Edith to "blend in," especially her efforts to absorb the staid English personae of her adopted family. Milton's memoir includes her post war journey to America and reunion with her brilliant, complicated mother, whose career as a doctor was not only terminated by anti-Semitism in Germany, but cut off for years by the American medical establishment's paranoid prejudice against trained Europeans.

Throughout, the author's words draw a rich picture of the life she remembers living, and its fascinating contrast to her adult understanding of what was actually happening. Ultimately this is a story of a young person's realization of her true self.

Edith Milton has an extraordinary ability to write with clarity about things she admits may be conjured by occasionally faulty memory. The fact that this is a personal account of recent history, makes this book something essential to read. The excellent writing makes it a treat.

We believe it would improve the equality of life in the Lehigh Valley if all people were equally protected from discrimination based upon actual or perceived: race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry or place of birth, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, family status, age, disability, or a guide animal, in the areas of employment, housing, and public accommodation.

QUOTE #1

"Suggesting that the victims of discrimination should be responsible for changing the minds of bigots in order to "earn" equal rights is immoral and Un-American." - Liz Bradbury PDN Exec. Director on the cowardly statement in the Washington Post (quoted below) and the weak position taken by the national org Human Rights Campaign on the removal of Gender Identity protections from the language of the ENDA Legislation.

"Delaying passage of ENDA, which was first introduced in the House in the mid-1970s by Rep. Bella Abzug, until the transgender community changes enough hearts and minds would be a mistake." - From the Washington Post.

QUOTE #2

"What community is expected to protect its own enemies? Don't beat up the gay community, and then expect us to protect your secrets and your double life. It's just not right." -- Blogger Mike Rogers who broke the Sen. Larry Craig restroom sting story - explaining that he will no longer call what he does "outing" but rather "reporting."
